Accommodation at the University of Canberra

At the University of Canberra, there are two on-campus accommodations available. Students can stay at the University of Canberra Village or Arcscott House. Home to over 1,000 young people from Australia and abroad, you will find that approximately 60% of our residents are female and about 40% of our residents are from overseas.

University of Canberra Village (managed by Campus Living Villages) are currently expanding with 300 extra beds available in the first semester of 2009, and a further 207 beds to be completed by semester two 2009.

Students can also choose other options of accommodation such as homestay or off-campus rental accommodation. Specifically for homestay, students can apply the University of Canberra Homestay Program, in which the student will be designated to live with a Canberra host family.

For off-campus accommodation, students can browse through our website for a list of vacant rooms and rental properties in Canberra.
